National Desk Iran has participated in the 8th Doha International Maritime Defense Exhibition and Conference (DIMDEX 2024) to present its defense achievements. The three-day exhibition opened on Monday at the Qatar National Convention Center (QNCC). Iranian Defense Minister Brigadier General Mohammad Reza Ashtiani, who visited the exhibition on Monday, said the purpose of holding the exhibition is to present the defense achievements of different countries, which can provide a basis for the export of their products. He said that Iran's Defense Ministry has showcased its products such as long-range radars and various types of air defense systems. According to the exhibition organizers, the DIMDEX 2024 aims to lay the groundwork for increased cooperation among relevant stakeholders. Its main goal is to build partnerships and alliances that focus on establishing security and stability in the seas and oceans, positively affecting the economic and social well-being of nations and communities.
