Decision-makers won't be held hostage by warmongers

By Ebrahim Beheshti
Staff writer

OPINION

Following Israel's aerial attacks on several military targets in Iran in retaliation for Tehran's missile strike, it appears that the stage is set for warmongers to take center stage. These are the same individuals who regularly voice their opinions on behalf of the authorities, speaking of a definite Iranian response and even going into details. This group of experts, comprising mid-ranking officials like lawmakers, military personnel, or ordinary individuals active on social media, make statements that suggest they have a say in making such crucial decisions and represent the Islamic Republic's decision-making body. Meanwhile, some foreign media outlets are fanning the flames by publishing reports of an imminent Iranian response, seemingly goading Iranian officials into launching a military attack. They are no less enthusiastic than some domestic voices in welcoming the escalation of tensions between Iran and the Israeli regime. Page 8 >

Israeli intelligence swaying ICC's judges in Tel Aviv's favor

By Syed Ali Hassan
Iran Daily's correspondent in Pakistan

Despite more than five months having passed, the International Criminal Court (ICC) has made no progress in investigating the organized and ongoing genocide by the occupying Israel in Palestine. On May 20, 2024, the ICC Prosecutor's Office demanded arrest warrants for Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and minister of military affairs Yoav Gallant. However, Israel and its supporter countries, including the United States, Canada, Germany, and the United Kingdom, have resisted these warrants at every level. The US has openly criticized the ICC's request for arrest warrants against Netanyahu and Gallant, with President Joe Biden labeling the warrants as provocative. Biden reaffirmed that the US does not recognize the ICC's jurisdiction over Israel and considers the warrants detrimental to peace efforts in the region. This biased perspective has kept some Western nations from recognizing Israeli crimes. Page 7 >
